My cholo boyfriend

I'm a 42 year old professional and a few months ago I began dating a 19 year old Cholo. At first it was a big thrill for both of us. I took him shopping and bought him designer clothes. I took him out to eat at the finest restaurants and introduced him to my family and friends. I was beginning to think that he was "the one" until this past weekend. I found out that he has joined a notorious gang and was out partying it up with them the past two nights. I have to admit I don't much care for the idea of a gang banging husband, but what really hurts is that I have not met any of his gang friends. I brought him to my mother's 73rd birthday party for crying out loud! He has no right to be ashamed of me, I have a PHD and he's a high school drop out. Can we work this out, or are we just too different?

I miss the days of the EST whose lesbian girlfriend was pretending to be possessed by the devil. This is just pathetic OP.

reply 2 11/22/2010

I am a 53 year old man who's BF of two years just turned twenty. I love him more than life itself but we are very different people and everyday I see him sliding further away. I It is a struggle. It is often "worth it". It is often "heart breaking". I am being serious.

I think you are an EST or just plain retarded. I want to make that clear. But it is a good thread if anyone wants to seriously discuss age disparity relationships. I am not a member but have thought of starting such a thread.

For [R17] ... Cholo is a Hispanic male who typically dresses in chinos, a wifebeater sleeveless teeshirt or a flannel shirt with only the top buttoned, a hairnet, or with a bandana around the forehead, usually halfway down over the eyes. Cholos often have black ink tattoos, commonly involving Catholic imagery, or calligraphy messages or family names. %0D %0D
